Nakamichi Concert Hall

Sound of Nakamichi Reference Cassette Series

Sound of Nakamichi Reference Cassette Series cassette tapes were individually recorded in their own housing employing computer-controlled top-of-the-line Nakamichi home decks on TDK MA tape with Dolby B- or C-type noise reduction. Each cassette was individually tested before recording, and the master was continuously monitored to ensure proper transfer.

Our objective is to bring you the finest in both analog and digitally recorded materials in our Reference Cassette Series so that you may judge for yourself the relative merits of these two recording techniques.

Our digitally-recorded albums, designated "RD," were transferred to digital working masters in a direct digital-to-digital transfer, thus assuring no loss of data or deterioration of the musical performance. The TELARC and DELOS albums were derived from Soundstream™ Digital Master Recordings, which are still considered among the finest examples of the digital mastering art.

Through an exclusive arrangement with SHEFFIELD LAB, we are also able to bring to you, in cassette format, some of the best-engineered analog performances ever recorded. SHEFFIELD LAB performances are produced from SHEFFIELD's own live, un-edited 2-track analog master tapes which were recorded simultaneously with the original direct disc performances. These cassettes were duplicated in real time from a 30 inch-per-second, 1/2-inch tape and transferred through playback equipment containing SHEFFIELD LAB's own proprietary electronics.

Our analog performances are designated "RA," indicating that the source material was in analog format.

Why metal tape? We have discovered that TDK Metal Tape (MA) has the greatest dynamic range and the lowest distortion of the high frequency response of any tape available today. Moreover, its long-term stability and archivability equals or exceeds any other currently available tape. Since our state-of-the-art transfer technology is designed to capture virtually all of the energy contained in the original master recordings, only the finest quality tape can assure that the excitement of the original live performance will be available for your listening enjoyment.

WINDHAM HILL

Defying definition, Windham Hill and associated labels continue to offer the most innovative, exciting music available today. From acoustic instrumentals to pop and jazz performances, the Windham sound has expanded in the past ten years to encompass some of the world's most listenable music.

GRP

GRP Records is a leading manufacturer of digital recordings and compact discs with emphasis on the jazz format. The principals of GRP are Dave Grusin, a solo performer and studio musician of international renown, and Larry Rosen, who offers exceptional engineering and recording skills.

GRP's expanding catalog offers jazz performances of exceptional musical and sonic merit.

TELARC

TELARC RECORDS defines the leading edge of high fidelity recording. An independent U.S. classical record company, TELARC is known for its leadership in digital recording and its uncompromising efforts to preserve the musical integrity and sonic realism of live performances. It was the first American record company to record a symphonic ensemble using digital techniques (1978). It has perfected the use of minimal miking to achieve concert hall realism, and it is the only American record company to record 5 major U.S. orchestras on a continuing basis.

A&M

A&M is one of THE LEADING INDEPENDENT producers of Pop, Jazz and Contemporary music. Known for their high quality recordings, A&M's catalog of performances and artists continue to grow aggressively, reflecting the ever-changing tastes in American music.

DELOS

From the very outset of digital recording, the award-winning Delos label has maintained its international position as a leader in this new technology. Long associated with Soundstream™ digital recording process, the label offers the finest classical and jazz performances recorded with uncompromising attention to detail. The recordings in the expanding Delos catalog continue to draw the praise of critics and public alike for their transparent sound, natural ambience and full dynamic range.

SHEFFIELD

In 1968, SHEFFIELD LAB pioneered the field of audiophile recording by making the first modern direct disc, a recording procedure whereby each side of a "Master Lacquer Disc" is cut during a single live recording session. This technique places extraordinary demands on musicians and engineers alike. The resulting recordings amply demonstrate the exceptional energy and excitement of these live performances.

In their unending quest for sonic excellence, SHEFFIELD has designed their own complete recording chain, including amplifiers, monitor speakers, microphones and microphone consoles.

SHEFFIELD's efforts have earned them numerous awards, including 8 Grammy nominations for best-engineered albums.

The analog reference tapes which were recorded simultaneously during the live performance, from which pre-recorded cassettes and compact discs are produced, share all of the musical excitement of the live performance and all of the sonic benefit of SHEFFIELD'S excellent engineering and custom electronics.
